Research Projects

Research projects, principal investigator

I am or have been the principal investigator of six research projects. Since 2021 I am the principal investigator of a new project on lower-level urbanization in Tanzania and Uganda. Between 2011 and 2020 I was the team leader of the Afrint group. This is an African Swedish research programme that has involved a total of fifteen senior African researchers, and six senior Swedish researchers. The project concerns processes of change within smallholder agriculture in six African countries, and has been funded through five sub-projects of which I am or have been the Principal Investigator.

1. Vetenskapsrådet, Explaining inclusive lower-level urbanization in Tanzania and Uganda. Collaborating investigators, Frank Muggaga (Makerere University, Uganda), Herbert Hambati, (University of Dar es Salaam), Fred Dzanku (University of Ghana), grant period 2021-2023 4 482 871 sek.
2. DFID, Equity and institutions in Sustainable African Intensification, 2016-2020, Collaborating investigators, Dr Genesis Tambang Yengoh (Lund University Centre of Sustainability Science), Associate Professor Ola Hall (Department of Human Geography, Lund University), Associate Professor Anna Mdee (University of Leeds), Dr Karin Lindsjö (Department of Human Geography, Lund University) and three country teams in Zambia, Malawi and Tanzania, headed by Mr Mukata Wamulume, Professor Wapulumuka Mulwafu and Professor Aida Isinika, respectively. £643 011 (Grant number S 69). <https://sairla-africa.org>

3. Vetenskapsrådet: Gender and pro-poor agricultural growth: nonfarm/farm linkages and village dynamics in sub-Saharan Africa, 2015-2017, collaborating investigators, Associate Professor Ellen Hillbom (Department of Economic History), Professor Björn Holmquist (Department of Statistics), Dr Ola Hall (Department of Human Geography) Lund University, Mr Mukata Wamulume and Dr Audrey Kalindi (Institute of Social and Economic Research, University of Zambia), Dr Stephen Wambugu (Chuka University Kenya) 2 985000 sek
4. ESRC-UK (through the DFID- ESRC Growth Research Programme) Gender and pro-poor agricultural growth: nonfarm/farm linkages and village dynamics in sub-Saharan Africa, collaborating investigators, Professor Aida Isinika, Sokoine University of Agriculture, Morogoro, Tanzania, and Dr. Peter Coughlin, Econpolicy, Maputo Mozambique, 2015-2017 £332 457 (grant number ES/L012014/1)
5. Vetenskapsrådet (formerly U-Forsk Sida): The possibilities and challenges for gender neutral pro-poor agricultural growth in Malawi and Zambia, collaborating investigators Associate Professor Ellen Hillbom (Department of Economic History), Professor Björn Holmquist (Department of Statistics) and two country teams in Malawi (Professor Wapulumuka Mulawafu and Dr Peter Mvula) and Zambia (Mr Mukata Wamulume and Dr Audrey Kalindi), 2012-2014, 4 050 000 sek.
6. Vetenskapsrådet Poverty effects of income diversification in Kenya and Ghana, collaborating investigators, Professor Magnus Jiström (Human Geography) and two country teams in Kenya (Professor Willis O'Louch Kosura, University of Nairobi, Dr Joseph Karugia, ILRI, Ass. Prof Stephen Wambugu Kenyatta University, later at Chuka University) and Ghana (Ass Prof Bruce Sarpong and Dr Fred Dzanku), 2011-2013, 3 000 000 sek.

Research consortia

1. Theme leader, Theme 1, Social and Economic Dimensions of Smallholder Based Agriculture and Food Security. AgriFose 2030, 2016 -2017
The AgriFoSe2030 program is developed by a consortium of scientists from the Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences (SLU), Lund University, University of Gothenburg and Stockholm Environment Institute. The program is sub-divided into four themes, each with a budget of 15 000 000 sek over a five year period.
2. Researchers from the Afrint group are partners in the Agricultural Policy Research in Africa (APRA), based at the Institute of Development Studies, Sussex, funded by the Department for International Development (DFID)

Participation in other research projects

I am also involved or have been involved as a co-investigator in the following projects:

1. Vetenskapsrådet (U-Forsk), Jordbrukets strukturomvandling i Afrika söder om Sahara studerat med hushållsdata, satellitbilder och maskininlärning, main applicant Ola Hall, grant period 2020-2022, amount awarded 4 450 132 sek.
2. Riksbankens Jubileumsfond, Jordbrukets strukturomvandling i Afrika söder om Sahara studerat med hushållsdata, satellitbilder och maskininlärning, main applicant Ola Hall, grant period 2020-2022, amount awarded 5 139 000 sek
3. Vetenskapsrådet (formerly U-Forsk, Sida), Livestock in the City - benefits, risks and regulations, main applicant Professor Ulf Magnusson (Department of Clinical Sciences, Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences), grant period: 2013-2015, amount awarded: 3 600 000 SEK.
4. FORMAS: African urban agriculture: environmental, social and economic challenges and prospects under changing global and demographic realities, main applicant Professor Beatrix Alsanus (Department of Horticulture, Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences), grant period: 2013-2015, amount awarded: 7 064 000 SEK.
5. Vetenskapsrådet (formerly U-Forsk Sida): African urban agriculture: social, economic and environmental challenges and prospects under changing global and demographic realities, main applicant Professor Magnus Jiström, grant period: 2012-2014, amount awarded: 3 300 000 SEK.

6. Vetenskapsrådet (formerly U-Forsk, Sida): What is driving unsustainable bushmeat hunting in Cross River, Nigeria? Urban market or local peoples' livelihoods? Main applicant, Associate Professor Ola Olsson (Department of Biology, Lund University), grant period: 2012-2014, amount awarded: 3 180 000 SEK.
7. Vetenskapsrådet: The Millennium Development Goals and the African Food Crisis, Main applicant, Professor Göran Djurfeldt, grant period: 2007-2009, amount awarded: 4 093 000 SEK.

Outreach

My outreach activities focus on engaging with policy makers and civil society. Within the Swedish context interaction with policy makers primarily at Sida and the Foreign Ministry has been in the shape of commissioned reports, presentations and participation in policy dialogues, both in Stockholm and at regional offices in different countries in sub-Saharan Africa. International outreach has been in the form of panel participation in public events organized by the Overseas Development Institute, London, as well as at the Donor Platform for Rural Development (headquartered in Bonn). An important part of engaging with policy makers and stakeholders also occurs with respect to field work in a number of African countries. The dataset which we have developed within the team has been used by policy makers as well as other researchers internationally.
